of the road by notices posted on the lamp-posts, etc., of the principal streets, but owing, we fancy, to the chair coolies being unable to read them, they are as yet nearly inoperative. Foreigners are very willing to co-operate with such efforts, for their own comfort, but when they cannot make themselves understood (as is generally the case) but little good results from their endeavours. We would suggest that the police be instructed to enforce the rule, and whenever they perceive a chair on the wrong side of the road instruct the bearers to take their proper position. Of course this requires police who can make themselves understood to the natives, a qualification, the absence of which at present distinguishes that ornamental body. No later than yesterday we perceived one of the Black Jokes of the Colony, great in turban, and perfectly awful in the dexterity with which he twirled his baton, endeavouring to make some chair-coolies comply 50 baskets and 31 jars salted Vegetawith directions quite right in themselves but quite wrongly enforced, the six feet of animated Indian native at length losing all patience and using his truncheon as a final interpreter. Beat a man over the head and face, judiciously aiming your blows from a northerly direction, and the probability is that he will retreat backwards to the southward, and this was the ultima ratio adopted by the > stand what was meant by the Black What we complain of is that these, doubtless well-meaning but half-useless, Sikhs cannot understand anyone. If a house be on fire, a fight going on, or a larceny is being committed, neither European or Chinese can obtain the help of a Sikh policeman unless he be an actual witness of the affair. With the enormous sum at the disposal of the Government for police purposes we could surely afford a thoroughly efficient police force, consisting entirely of Europeans, and of a better grade even than a large proportion of those now entered. Remonstrance is, we fear, thrown away till the time expires of the Sikha' engagement. But we sincerely hope that when that date arrives, the experiment will not be continued.

THE "indifference to human life," as strangers term it, or the fear of being implicated in cases of death by violence or disease, as the better in formed students of Chinese customs describe it, has more than once been distressingly illustrated in Hongkong. At the present moment a Chinese boatman stands committed on a charge connected with this subject, and without in any way commenting upon the circumstances which surround his particular case, we may be permitted to ask what steps have been taken to impress upon the native mind the distinction which exists between their mode of action and ours? HYDRAULIC PROPULSION.

It is about two years since the public heard of the trials made in H.M.'s Waterwitch of a new method of propulsion, destined, so its inventors affirmed, to supersede screws and paddles alike in the merchant service and the navy. These results were so satisfactory in the matter of speed—the only point in which a deficiency was anticipated that it might have been expected the experiments would have been continued and extended. But unfortunately the Waterwitch is one of the vessels that are not built to swim. On her voyage from Portamouth to Plymouth she all but went to the bottom, the risk being so great that the Admiralty presented, a watch to the chief stoker as a reward for courage in remaining at his post in time of langer. This misadventure was attributable solely to the seas breaking over her, and was in no way connected with the character of her propeller. worthiness being thus proved, of course no good experiments could afterwards be made with her, and the Admiralty have rightly refused to send her to sea. A MAGISTRATE OF THE SECOND Under this head the Pall Mall Galette cleverly satirizes the press prosecutions in Paris. Achille Pinson is an imaginary editor brought before M. Minos, the judge. on account of an article which he has wi en The Court is full of his riends, come to admire and with his anticipated martyrdom Our worthy friend Achille Pinson has not been two minutes in the flock before it is evident from the questions launcher at him from the bench that M. Minos has made up his mind not only to convict him, but likewise to give him three months of imprisonment. Achille Pinson, beitt remark. ed, has written a lather; mild article upon the condition of France-about which he knows little-as compared with that of America -- about which he knows nothing Had the Minister of the Interior let that sumposition, alone nobody would; have suffered much except Achille himself, for it is probable that nobody would have read the article, and Achille would have been grieved thereat. Achille, however, has been summoned, and after a single examination been convicted for trial. Now if M. Minos were what the French call un homme d'esprit. he would content himself by proving very courteously to Achille that this article was balderdask slightly tinctured with insauity. After which he would discharge him with the truthful assurance that so long as the Government had not more difficult enemies than he to cope with it had not much cause for fear, UThe effect of this would infallibly be to drive Addille flat mad. He would retire from the Palain de Justice discomfited. His friend the badaud near the door would tifter. his friends the iournalists would laugh " Un'the boulevards the thing would be cited as a joke. The Government would earn, very cheaply, a character for liberalism : and M. Minos a reputation for equity and wit. Well, no, the thought of making this masterstroke does not so much as occur to M. Minos. Big with importance. gravely intent upon swelling a molehil into a mountain, he is about to raise a rather mediocre writer, without much genius or principle, to the rank of political martyr. Watch how he questions Achille. Every line of his insipid article is made to glow with latent treason, as if it were a streak of phosphorus which might set flame to the Empire. M. Minos, who is a man of education, exhausts all the resources of his brain in trying to prove that our excellent though ignorant Actille is a marker by the Privy Council. THE "TREATY PORTS OF CHINA . & JAPAN," AND "NOTES AND QUERIES ON CHINA AND JAPAN." EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS

Some time ago we had occasion to remark apon the progress that Literature as represented by the Press had made and was making in the East; and our attention has again been called to the subject by the receipt of a Hongkong publication which deserves some notice and which we have much pleasure in introducing to the knowledge of our readers. We allude to Notes and Queries on China and Japan, published monthly by Mr Saint, the proprietor of the China Mail newspaper. This publication is well printed on good paper, and in size and shape is very like its well-known namesake or prototype at home, and is equally a mine containing very curious and useful information regarding the language, literature, history, manners and customs of the Chinese and in a less degree of the Japanese. It says a good deal for the extent and stability of the footing of Europeans in China, that such a publication as this should be established and conducted with apparently successful vigour.

The publication is altogether a very interesting one, and wishing it every success. we commend it to the attention and support of our readers.

(From the "Friend of India," June 4, 1868. We acknowledge with thanks the receipt of the numbers for the current year of "Notes and Queries," a most deserving Anglo-Chinese monthly, edited by Mr N. B. Dennys, whose "Treaty Ports of China and Japan" are so well known. From the names attached to the "Notes" we can see that the contributors include some of the best-Chinese scholars in the East. Its interest is not confined to China, and it will be of valuable assistance to all scholars, who have directed their attention towards the subject of Buddhism and its literature, and generally to all who are interested in oriental antiquities. It deserves to be better known in India.

(From the "London Examiner." May This really useful volume ["Treaty Ports

China and Japan "] is intended as a guide for travellers and residents in China and Japan, and as a book of reference for mercantile men generally. It contains an account, historical and political, of all the open ports of these countries, together with Peking, Yedo, Hongkong, and Macao. If has been carefully compiled and edited by Mr N. B. Dennys; and the elaborate maps and plans, with which the work abounds considerably enhance its value. * * * -We have thus given in outline some of the more prominent portions of the chapter devoted to Canton, as a specimen of the whole volume. Other chapters treating of Macao, Formosa, Ningpo, Shanghae, and the remainder of the treaty ports, we can only enumerate. The pages describing Peking, the capital, are so interesting, and contain so much that is new to European 1.—Pilot Boats shall be registered with readers respecting its history, public buil-their crews at the Harbour Master's Office, dings, and general characteristics, that we where each boat will be given a certificate would fain transfer them to our columns.
